T38 Studio is an architecture practice currently based in New York City. Their work is focused on residential projects and collaborations with artists and art Institutions. T38 Studio moves between local circumstances and global ambitions, between techniques based on habit and a mixing of conflicting values and practices: developer versus architect; planner versus builder; local versus global. The studio pays attention to the relationships that exist between the various spaces, ecologies and environments that shape the lives of individuals and communities.

Their work has been exhibited at the Storefront for Art and Architecture in NYC, Crown Hall At IIT Chicago, the Boston Society of Architects, Archivo and El Eco Museum in Mexico City. In 2005, Alfonso Medina established Taller 38, focused in real estate development and construction, which to this day has built over 30 different housing projects. In 2009 he established the T38 studio as an architecture, design and research office based in New York City and Tijuana.
