Melanie Freeland is an architect and Associate at Gensler. Born and raised in rural Missouri but now a faithful Angeleno, Melanie is passionate about the role of design and citizen engagement in the city. With over 16 years of architecture experience, her imprint on the city can be seen from the award winning Patina Restaurant at the Disney Concert hall to the canopies and light band at LAX.

She is an ardent supporter of alternative mobility and has been featured in the LA Times, KPCC, and Curbed promoting alternative forms of transportation and infrastructure. She was named AIACC Young Architect of 2017. Her portfolio includes over a dozen built projects in the US and overseas in a variety of scales and program types.
